

Coordinating a Grants Program with Community Resources

The Institute for Nonprofit Organization Management can tailor listings of nonprofit organizations to the activity and geographic area of interest, and help you link the data to internal grant tracking systems.

For example, the California Endowment is interested in helping its program officers find additional nonprofit organizations in places where they have existing programs, and in places where they would like to expand their investments. The Institute helped tailor a set of activity codes that describe organizations that fit the program areas at the California Endowment. We also matched the listing of nonprofit organizations to a list of 2000 – 2003 grantees so that staff could pinpoint potential new grantees.
