

Finding Information on Current Issues in the News

How can I find current newspaper articles?

Search ProQuest Newspapers and LexisNexis Academic.

- Go to the Library's Home Page at www.usfca.edu/library
- Click on the Start Your Research button
- LexisNexis Academic has full-text articles from hundreds of national and international newspapers. Find LexisNexis Academic under the Database List.

How can I find current magazine and journal articles?

- Go to the Library's Home Page
- Click on the Start Your Research button
- Click on InfoTrac OneFile, listed after Interdisciplinary Topics ⇒ InfoTrac Onefile covers a broad range of magazines. Has some full text articles, some abstracts, some citations from 1980 to present.
- Or, click on ProQuest, listed after Interdisciplinary Topics, and this time use it to find journal articles.

Other news/current events databases (Go to Database List to access these):

CQ Researcher: CQ Researcher is useful for research on major controversial topics of national and international scope and includes complete summaries of issues and insight into all sides of the issues (the pros and cons).

Opposing Viewpoints: Information on controversial topics. Includes essays as well as newspaper and journal articles. If your topic doesn't appear in the alphabetical list of topics, do a "Quick Search."
