

A quick review of your library research skills

Librarian's name & your class:

Date/Time:

- 1) In your own words, what are some of the differences between using a search engine like Google and using a library database like ProQuest?

- 2) Give at least 2 ways that an article in a scholarly journal is different from an article in a popular magazine (If you want to give more than 2 ways, go right ahead!)

- 3) You find information in a library database about an article you want to read. The database gives you the name of the journal, the date, the volume, the pages, but it only has a summary (an "abstract") of the article, not the full text. How do you determine if the USF library has that journal?
