Director, Keta Taylor Colby Death Penalty Project (2001-2013)

The Project was created in 2001 to involve students in work directed at the interim reform, and ultimate abolition, of the death penalty in America. The Project's principal activity has been the summer internship program, which sends Bay Area students to the South to work with capital defense attorneys.
As director, I selected and trained the internship students and arranged and reviewed their placements. The Project also has supported students in writing and publishing papers about death penalty law and practice in the South, and, to date, five students have published law review comments on issues encountered during their internships.

Director, U.S.F. Law Clinic (1986-92): The Clinic was an in-house law firm staffed by four faculty members and approximately 24 students per semester handling criminal, civil and administrative cases. In addition to being responsible for administration and fundraising for the Clinic, I supervised 4-6 students each semester handling federal civil rights cases or criminal appeals.

Co-counsel of record for Teddy Sanchez, a California prisoner under sentence of death, on his state appeal and petition for habeas corpus (1989-1996)

Co-author of amicus briefs in Davis v. Bandemer, 478 U.S. 109 (1986) and United Brotherhood of Carpenters v. Scott, 463 U.S. 825 (1983)

Pro bono counsel to individual migrant farm workers and to the United Farm Workers of America, AFL-CIO in various cases, including United Farm Workers v. Superior Court, 16 Cal.3d 499 (1976) (1973-1983)

Co-founder and former supervising attorney, U.S.F. Criminal Law Clinic (supported by a CLEPR grant) (1972-73)

Fall, 1993, 1994

Lecturer, University of California School of Law (Boalt Hall)
I taught a first-year section of Criminal Law

May, 1991

Visiting Professor, East China Institute of Politics and Law, Shanghai, China
I taught a course in American Labor and Employment Law to Chinese post-graduate students. I also delivered a series of lectures on Anglo-American Criminal Law attended by faculty and students.

Spring, 1991

Visiting Professor, Hastings College of Law
I directed the Criminal Justice Clinic and planned the restructuring of the Clinic for the 1991-92 academic year. In the Clinic, I taught a 3-hour course in criminal practice, and I supervised the students' field placements in prosecution and defense agencies.

LAW PRACTICE:

1990:

Of counsel to Remcho, Johansen & Purcell, Oakland, California

The firm practices in the area of political law. My principal activity was to work on the trial and on the post-trial briefing in Service Employees v. Fair Political Practices, 747 F. Supp. 580 (E.D. Cal. 1990) (a First Amendment challenge to a campaign reform initiative). In addition, I worked on projects or cases involving the Voting Rights Act, reapportionment and various initiatives.

1978-1980:

Directing Attorney of the Farm Worker Division of Evergreen Legal Services, Sunnyside, Washington

I administered a 12 person legal services office representing migrant and seasonal farm workers in civil proceedings and supervised six less experienced attorneys in a broad range of litigation, primarily: civil rights and employment discrimination actions, suits under federal worker protective legislation, tort suits and administrative appeals.

1971-1972:

Partner in Rader & Shatz, Huntington Beach, California

The firm engaged in a general practice emphasizing criminal defense, general civil litigation, administrative law, labor law and employment discrimination law.

1969-1971:

Reginald Heber Smith Community Lawyer Fellow with the Legal Aid Foundation of Long Beach, Long Beach, California

I represented indigent persons in civil litigation with an emphasis on landlord-tenant problems and civil rights issues.
