FEATURED PRESENTERS

Ali R. Tayyeb, PhD, RN-BC, PHN
Ali Tayyeb is a United States Navy Veteran who served as a Fleet Marine Force Corpsman with the Naval Medical Center San Diego, 1st Marine Division and 3rd Marine Division. After ten years of enlisted service, Ali pursued a career as a registered nurse, earning both a baccalaureate and Master’s degree in Nursing from California State University, Los Angeles and a Ph.D. from the University of San Diego. Ali is nationally board certified as a Nursing Professional Development Specialist. He is also a Jonas Center Veterans Healthcare Scholar and is currently an Assistant Professor at the Patricia A. Chin School of Nursing at California State University, Los Angeles. Ali’s research is veteran-centric with a focus on the lived experience. His latest published collaboration has been with the Cost of War Project at the Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University in which the publication titled “Bad Papers”: The Invisible and Increasing Costs of War for Excluded Veterans was released in June of 2017.

Amy Fairweather, JD
Amy Fairweather directs the Swords to Plowshares Institute for Veteran Policy (IVP) which conducts public policy research regarding veterans’ health, access to benefits, and socioeconomic well-being. Amy oversees Swords to Plowshares Combat to Community™ education and technical assistance and re-granting programs and, since 1999, has worked in the field of public health policy, in particular with and for trauma survivors. Amy earned her undergraduate degree from Mills College and her juris doctor from the Hastings College of the Law. She is a member of State Bar of California.

Paul Sullivan
Paul Sullivan was born and raised in the Bay Area and served as an Army scout during the 1991 Gulf War ground invasion of Iraq and Kuwait. Paul has been an advocate for fellow veterans for 25 years. He formerly served as the Deputy Secretary of Communications at CalVet, Executive Director at Veterans for Common Sense, and a project manager at VA. He is currently the Director of Veteran Outreach at Bergmann & Moore, a Maryland law firm representing veterans nationwide with VA disability claim appeals. Paul has appeared in numerous news interviews and testified more than two dozen times before Congress about legislation improving the lives of veterans and their families.

Tyson Manker, JD
Previously, Tyson served as a U.S. Marine during the invasion of Iraq. After nine months of combat, he and his fellow infantry marines returned home without being medically screened. For self-medicating with marijuana once on leave, Tyson was kicked out of the Marines with a less-than-honorable discharge, which stripped him of his educational benefits and all compensation. With no support from the military or Veterans Affairs, Tyson put himself through college and law school. He was recognized in his home state of Illinois for taking action that forced the resignations of multiple corrupt public officials, and has advocated on a number of military issues, including Veterans Treatment Courts, discharge upgrade reform, and better research on Post Traumatic Stress and Traumatic Brain Injury.
