News from the School of Management

We're thankful for our incredible students, alumni, and faculty. This Thanksgiving, we invite you to discover how they're changing the world from here:

SOM Alumna is Chief Executive in the Fight Against Cancer

For Alexandra Morgan, MNA '00, the fight against Cancer is personal. It played a pivotal role in her decision to become CEO of Family House — a San Francisco nonprofit that cares for children stricken by the disease.

Professor Dave Griffis wins Kappa Alpha Theta’s Outstanding Faculty Member Award
Griffis attributes his success as a teacher to the professors he had while he was a student at USF, "I stand on the shoulders of giants. I've taken what they've taught me - their principles, their philosophies, their ideas - and have put them into my classroom. I've been really lucky to have had so many inspirations while here at USF."

How to Turn a Class Assignment Into a Startup Company

Entrepreneur and USF alumnus Justin Ohanessian’s recipe for launching a successful business calls for two things: a simple idea and abundant determination.

Hacking, Venture Capital, and Crossbows: Global Demo Day 2014

The world’s best young entrepreneurs congregated at USF to present their startup ideas at AngelHack’s annual worldwide champion hackathon.
